CHEATED LYNCHERS.

Two Colored Men Duly Executed In Virginia.

Manassas, Va., April 27.—Ben White and Jim Robinson, colored, after narrow escapes from death at the hands of Judge Lynch, were legally executed here today for a assault on two white women last January. The proof of their guilt was conclusive, and feeling against them was so bitter, that in order to save them from mob violence, the Alexandria Light Infantry guarded them during the trial, and from the Alexandria Jail, where they have been confined since their arrest.

Zach Coke has been arrested at Lawrenceburg on a charge of arson. It is alleged that Coke set fire to the barn and stable of Thomas Watts.

COUNTY PRIMARY.

The County Committee Meets and Orders a

Primary for Thursday, June 14.

The Congressional Race To Be Settled In This County by Precinct Conventions.

The Amount Each Candidate Must Pay

To Have His Name Placed On The Ballots.

On Saturday afternoon the Democratic Committee of Montgomery county met at the Court House for the purpose of naming a day to hold a Primary Election for offices of the county, and to settle how the county should name its choice for Congressman from the Tenth District.

In the Congressional race it was ordered that Precinct Conventions be held on the fourth Saturday in June (the 23d) at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting delegates, who will meet at the Court House on the Tuesday following in Delegate County Convention.

Each precinct will be entitled to one delegate for each fifty Democratic votes and fraction over 25 votes cast at the last Presidential election; provided, that each precinct shall be entitled to at least one delegate.

It was further ordered: PRIMARY ELECTION. A primary election to nominate Democratic candidates for the various county offices to be voted for at the November election, 1894, will be held at the several voting places in Montgomery county, on Thursday, June 14, 1894, between the hours of 7 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m.

Candidates for the various offices are required to deposit the sum hereinafter mentioned with the Chairman of the Committee, to cover the costs of the election. Said deposit must be made by 10 o'clock a. m. of Friday, May 25, 1894, and in default thereof the candidate's name will not be placed on the ballot.

By order of the Committee:
H. R. FRENCH, Chairman.
S. S. PRIEST, Sec'y.

Hon. Evan E. Settle, candidate for Congress in opposition to Breckinridge and Owens in the Seventh District, has challenged Colonel Breckinridge for a division of time at Paris, Monday, May 7, when the Colonel is slated to address the Democracy of Bourbon.

Money Makes the Maro Go.

A special to the dailies is this: "The story comes from Dover that J. E. McKinley, aged thirty-five, and Mrs. Mary Grove, eighty-three, will venture on the sea of matrimony. McKinley is a school teacher from Ohio, and Mrs. Grove is the widow of Hon. Jerry Grove, a former Mayor of Dover. She is wealthy and rumor has it that a marriage contract gives McKinley $6,000 cash and $1,000 per annum. McKinley was in Mayville this morning and cashed Mrs. Grove's check for a round sum. The approaching wedding is current rumor on the streets and much talked of."

General Coxe, on his march to Washington, takes time to be interviewed. "The farmer stokes out his honey hands, in his plain, stolid features, in his walk, in the fit of his clothes. A fondness for sweet potatoes for butter-milk and fried things and custard and pie is shown in the cut and swing of his mouth. On his head is a brown Tyrol hat, the worse for wear and somewhat stained at the lower edge of the ribbon. He sits in a chair with one arm leaning over the back, with his shoulders drooping and his stomach sunk in, with his legs crossed at the knees in that curious way that lets both feet rest on the ground."

In speech he is voluble but not excited. He tells you that Carl Browne is a partial incarnation of the deity, that he himself is Andrew Jackson in a new robe of flesh, that the millennium is at hand in the quietest way in the world, much as he would say, "Pass me the apple-butter."

"Do you believe in free love, Mr. Coxe?"

"Now, you cannot side-track the main issues," he said, firmly but amiably.

"And what are the main issues?"

"Good roads and the non-interest-bearing bonds."

"And what may that be?"

It was a long explanation—something about the government manufacturing a lot of money, and lending it to the States and the States lending it to the cities, and then everybody getting to work at making roads and things for the public good, with plenty to eat; and plenty to wear; and nobody poor and nobody hungry and everybody like everybody else.

"And how are you going to bring all this about?"

"By legislation. That's what we're marching on to Washington for. We are going to make Congress see that the people want it and they will pass the laws."

"They will order a lot of paper money made?"

"Yes," observed Mr. Coxe, cheerfully, "No more gold, no more silver—all paper. That will drive foreign investors out of the country. Why, foreigners have 5,000 millions invested here now, and the interest all goes out of the country."

Thick As Three in a Bed.

A strange coincidence is this: "A curious domestic trio are now living together in the Southern part of Vanceburg. William McCane, an aged gentleman, married a pretty widow. A few months after marriage the young wife fell in love with John Simpler, the hired man. Mr. McCane discovering the mutual infatuation, divorced his wife and allowed her to marry Simpler. They now live, all three of them, happily together. McCane has, it is said, deeded Simpler and his former wife all his possessions."

CONGRESS.

The Tenth Congressional District.

The race for the Democratic nomination, if not already, will soon be made up. The candidates most spoken of are Hon. M. C. Lisle, the present incumbent and Hon. Jo M. Kendall, who succeeded his father; Mr. Cardwell, of Breathitt, and Mr. Stephens, of Floyd, are, so we have heard, also candidates for the nomination. As to the two first named gentlemen, we have this to say: That we should have no preference based on location or friendship unless all things are equal. The mental fitness for the place is the first element to be considered, and experience has taught us that morality is an element not to be overlooked.

A successful Congressman then must be a clean, moral man, intelligent, thoroughly posted on political principles, and without a lazy bone in his hide. Those who know Mr. Lisle and Mr. Kendall can choose the one who would best represent this district in Congress, notwithstanding it may be a difficult task. They are good men. Mr. Kendall is hustling for the nomination while Mr. Lisle is attending to the duties for which the people have elected him. Mr. Kendall is master of his own time. Mr. Lisle is a servant of the people and believes to them his time and labor belongs. Mr. Lisle has the approval of his own conscience in regard to his work in the halls of Congress, and we have not heard one word of censure. He has seldom failed to answer at roll call, and his votes have been in accord with the principles of his party, and upon this record he asks the indorsement of the people whom he is serving. Concerning the other gentlemen we know but little.

We have also heard Judge John E. Cooper's name mentioned in connection with the candidacy for the Democratic nomination, and knowing him to be a strong man, a Simon pure Democrat, with courage equal to any emergency, a reporter of the Advocate sought and obtained an interview, which in substance is as follows:

I am not a candidate for Congress and will not be. Have many letters urging me to enter the race, but I have no inclination in that direction. I consider the many appeals a high compliment, and no man appreciates these recognitions more than I do. I realize that there is a hard fight ahead of the nominee, and I am, indeed, sorry to know that these hard times will drive some dimly backbone Democrats to vote against the principles of our party. I am a Democrat, not of this kind, and Republican cyclones, such as we have had, the results of which we are now feeling, could not bring me into the abandonment of the principles I hold and know to be right. But to return: I am not a candidate and will not be, and if the people of the district should rise up and name me, I tell you frankly, I do not know what my decision would be. I have triumphed in hard fought battles; believe in and swear by the principles of the grand old Democratic party; am profoundly grateful for the honors conferred on me, and am willing to serve out my term of office with my faith hooked on to the Democratic ship, which is bound to land us into fields of prosperity.

A Card.

Some parties are industriously circulating the report that the undersigned are to be deputies under William Sled in case of his election as Sheriff of Montgomery county. Both of us desire to state that we have made arrangements to engage in other business.

A. B. RATLIFF,
J. C. RICHARDSON.

My friends, Messrs. Ratliff and Richardson have kindly written the above card to free me from any semblance of embarrassment that such a report might be tortured into.

I have made arrangements with Mr. James Stockdale to serve as my deputy when the people of the county shall select me for their Sheriff. Should I be honored with the office, I will spare nothing to serve the people most faithfully.

Respectfully,
WM. SLED.

Glass In The Flesh For Thirty-five Years.

The Georgetown Times says: Thirty five years ago Mrs. Milton Stevenson, while brushing some broken glass from a table stuck a piece of it in the palm of her hand. At intervals since the hand and arm have given her considerable pain. Last week she discovered a pimple on the inside of her arm near the elbow and on opening it extracted a piece of glass, which for the past thirty-five years had been working its way up into the arm.

What a Pity.

The Bluegrass Clipper says: "As the Congressional race stands now Breckinridge is undoubtedly the strongest candidate in Woodford. We have no desire to talk for political effect, but to state facts; and this is a fact, notwithstanding reports to the contrary sent from the county to daily papers."

It does appear that a pure, good man suitable for Congressional timber is hard to find.

Life Is Misery

To many people who have the taint of scrofula in their blood. The agonies caused by the dreadful running sores and other manifestations of this disease are beyond description. There is no other remedy equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla for scrofula, salt rheum and every form of blood disease. It is reasonably sure to benefit all who give it a fair trial.

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills.

Drowned.

The 8 year old son of Quilla Johnson, of color was out with other boys wading in Hinkston creek near the depot and got in water over his head, and was drowned Saturday. The boys with him tried to get him out but failing ran for help. When he was taken out he was so far gone that he could not be restored. The place where the boy was drowned had been excavated to the depth of five feet.

For The Pen.

Dave Crooks, Dave Oldham and Henry Venev all negroes were sentenced to the penitentiary Monday by Judge Cooper. Crooks goes up for fifteen months, Oldham and Venev get 2 year each. They were too fond of meat.

Fourteen years ago Tom Reed scored the Democrat who advocated counting a quorum in the House and now the carrying into effect the measure then introduced is claimed by the Republicans as a victory for Reed. Reed and the Republican party want glory.

The who man called Sarsaparilla a fraud, had good reasons; for he got hold of a worthless mixture at "reduced rates." He claimed his opinion, however, when he began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It pays to be careful, when buying medicines.

"A wolf in sheep's clothing"—the substitute offered by the "cutter" as being just as good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. If you don't want to be bitten, insist upon having Ayer's Sarsaparilla, even if it is a little dearer. Depend on it, it will be cheaper for you in the end.

The raising of draft horses has brought millions of dollars to American farmers. The grade draft horses for several years sold for $200 to $300, have for years made more money to the farmer than any other stock, and if he has wisely kept his grade of draft mares, he is now in condition to make more money than with any other stock. True, the prices are down, but high grade horses still sell for double the price of small horses. The market reports "quite good" draft horses $100 to $150, and light harness horses $50 to $75, yet the great majority of horses marketed are of the small, worthless kind, just as scrub cattle fill the markets at 2 to 2½ cents, while expert high grades sell readily for 5 cents. A carload of extra good draft horses from Ohio recently sold at Chicago for $135 apiece to Eastern shippers. Many horses are brought young from the West and matured in Ohio and Pennsylvania. It pays the farmer and breeder better to mature and break the draft horses for market.

Among the islands belonging to Alaska is one near the southwestern coast which is called Annette. It has for the last five years been settled by the Metekahlah Indians, under charge of Rev. William Duncan, who is a minister of the Church of England, and who has a record for heroic self sacrifice equal to that of Father Damien in the Sandwich Islands. When Father Duncan began his labors among those Indians 37 years ago they were cannibals of the lowest type. They then resided in British Columbia. But after partially civilizing the Indians Father Duncan found that they were being debauched by contact with the rougher class of white traders, who furnished them with whiskey and seemed likely to undo all the good he had done. So he asked and received permission to settle the island of Annette, and there are about 800 Indians, and their number is slowly increasing. No liquor has ever been sold on this island, and some of the Alaska Indians who wish to come under better influences are coming over and joining the colony.

ENDED.

THE CLAIM OF WILLIAM MCGARRAHAN BY THE GRIM REAPER.

The Old Man No Longer Troubled Over the Base Injustice Done Him.

His Famous Claim One of the Most Noted in All the History of Congress.

His Justice Disputed by None Save These Who Wrongfully Deprived Him of His Right.

SAD STORY OF HIS LIFE.

Washington, April 25.—(Special)—The dark angel of death visited Providence Hospital to-day, and veiled forever the claim of poor old William McGarrahan. His kind, benevolent face and the familiar figure that has appeared regularly during the sessions of Congress for the last thirty years and over will be seen no more. He spent a whole life battling manfully against heavy odds, for justice, and truth. Truly, after life's fight, he sleeps well.

As the claimant to the New Idria quicksilver mine he had been a familiar figure at the Capitol for years, and was well known to nearly all the Senators and Representatives, a majority of whom were believers in the justice of his claims. A bill to permit a trial of this case in the Court of Claims was passed by Congress, but was vetoed by President Harrison. Several other bills have been passed by one House or the other, and a score of committees had reported favorably on the claim. At the present time a bill pending in the Senate at this session is passing by the House.

Mr. McGarrahan visited the House for the last time Friday in the interest of his bill, and when he returned to the hospital was completely exhausted. Death was due to a complication of diseases. Dropsy developed a few days ago and after that he sank rapidly until the end came to-day.

The story recalled by the pathetic death of William McGarrahan is a sad one and full of romance. It is a story that has seldom found a parallel in fact, though it has been foreshadowed in fiction. The weary, struggling, despairing, yet ever hopeful wards in Jarndyce in Dickens' story were no more fortunate and could have been more right than he.

During all these weary years of litigation and petitioning William McGarrahan was nominally arraigned against the United States Government. That is to say, if the title to the Panoche Grande Ranch did not vest in him, as he claimed, it did vest in the United States. Hence all his actions were brought against the United States and his petitions made to Congress.

Yet it was not the United States that really opposed him. The United States courts three times affirmed his title to the land; congressional investigation committees declared emphatically in his favor, and various officials of high degree who passed upon his claim expressed themselves as perfectly satisfied with the clearness of his title.

His real opponent was a private corporation known as the New Idria Mining Company, which squatted upon his land shortly after he purchased it and has ever since been making enormous profits out of the rich deposits of quicksilver found beneath his rocky surface.

It is this squating corporation that kept Wm. M. McGarrahan out of his rights all these years. At every turn the well-paid lawyers and agents of the "New Idria" appear to combat him, and though he repeatedly won and won his title, a war of technicality was waged upon him, and legal difficulties turned up at every step, cunningly devised, so as to block him and send him again and again to the courts and to Congress for help. When the committee appointed by the Fortieth Congress to investigate his claim made its report it called this company some hard names. It alleged that the company was a squatter, and called attention to the fact that, if the company was not growing fast and rich all this time out of Wm. McGarrahan's mineral wealth, it was doing so out of the mineral wealth of the United States, and hence was not entitled to consideration.

But all these favorable official declarations did not prevent McGarrahan from going on. He remained a struggling outcast, respected and liked by every statesman and official, and believed by all, but an outcast nevertheless, and the New Idria Company was becoming fatter and fatter and paying large dividends to its stockholders, and, after settling all the enormous legal expenses entailed upon it by the necessity of meeting McGarrahan's active warfare.

So, for years and years, as Congress came and went, and Senators of long terms turned gray with service, and Administrations rose and fell, and Washington grew from a pretty town into a great and wealthy city, William McGarrahan walked the streets of the capital.

He was one of its most familiar human spectacles—a man pointed out by statesmen of his visiting friends; he had known many men of many administrations, had interviewed many a President, had known the officials of many departments.

There is McGarrahan, the claimant, "was constantly on all lips, for this man was widely known to all persons of all sorts and degrees. William McGarrahan was a man who made friends, for he was always kind and gentle and pleasant spoken. That he was an Irishman was told by his face as well his name, and his tongue had the unmistakable accent of his island home. Quiet smiling and homely, he was liked by all who knew him, notwithstanding his propensity in his later years to talk of nothing but his wrongs."

So when he recently went to the hospital, being poor, homeless and a bachelor, he was soon missed from his accustomed haunts. "I was little more than a slip of a lad when I came over from the old country," said he the other day, raising his head upon a pillow. "I went to Connecticut when I got here, very green, indeed, and very hopeful, and made arrangements to go into business with a friend out there."

"I had some money and was going to do great things, of course. But the other fellow went back on me at the last moment, and that is how it all came about, for then I got the California craze in my head. It was in 1849. Oh, yes; I was one of the original 'forty-niners.'"

Well, I went West, traveled over the whole continent, in an immense grant train and met hardships and Indian and discouragements and all that sort of things till I got to San Francisco. Then I went into business, invested my money and prospered. It was in the days of the big California boom, and everything prospered. Money was made by the barrel and turned over with a shovel. I plunged into the thickest of it and got rich with the rest. I bought and sold six hundred barrels of brandy in one day. I dealt in tobacco by the shipload. My income was $3,000 a month. And yet I lived simply! My wants were few and I never married.

"It was along about that time I met Gomez, and he wanted to sell me some land. He had got his Rancho Panoche Grande by a grant from the Mexican Government, and his title to it was clear."

"Well, it was a wild piece of land down in the wilderness of the southern counties of California, but I had faith in the country and thought it would be a good thing to buy. So I bought it and paid him $11,000 for it. Why, $11,000 was no more to me then than a dollar is now."

"After a time I heard that there was quicksilver on my ranch and that some squatters had gone down there and were making money out of it. So I thought I would go down and look at my property, and there I found them with a shanty and a little machinery taking the quicksilver from out of my rocks. I could have turned them all out, bag and baggage, on the spot if I had had a few men, for there were only half a dozen or so of them; but I let it go, thinking I would appeal to the law. So I went back to San Francisco and my business."

In 1844, Mr. William Mitchell, then the Mexican Governor of Upper California, according to a Mexican custom of bestowing lands upon deserving officials, granted this tract of land, which lies partly in Fresno and partly in Monterey counties, to Vincent P.

Gomez. When California was made over to the United States it was provided in the treaty of 1848 that property of every kind belonging to Mexicans should be inviolably respected, and that the United States should enforce the rights of Mexicans in such property. Thus Gomez was secure in his title to the property when California became an American possession, and, consequently, he was legally empowered to sell it as he chose.

Gomez in 1853 duly presented his claim to the ranch to the Board of Land Commissioners appointed by the United States Government for the purpose of settling all such claims, and this board decided against his claim—not because he had not proved the grant, but because he had failed to prove occupancy. But Gomez appealed to the United States District Court and the court fully confirmed his title. This being done, he sold the land to William McGarrahan, December 22, 1857.

And now litigation commenced. The squatters, doubtless alarmed by Mr. McGarrahan's visit to the ranch, did not wait for him to begin proceedings for ejectment. They induced the United States District Attorney to attack the Gomez title. This was done by appealing to the Supreme Court, but the Supreme Court promptly dismissed the appeal and confirmed the title. This perfected Mr. McGarrahan's claim. The next step was an application for a patent. Mr. McGarrahan applied for a survey, and the then Secretary of the Interior, Caleb B. Smith, caused an entirely new inquiry to be made, and in the end wholly confirmed the action of the courts, and ordered a patent issued to Mr. McGarrahan. The patent was duly made out and signed, but for some reason or other that could never be discovered it was never issued to Mr. McGarrahan.

Thus for a fourth time the title of Gomez and his grant was decided good in law. Mr. McGarrahan now appealed to President Lincoln to determine the case upon its merits. Mr. Lincoln did so, and directed the Secretary of the Interior to cause a patent to be issued to Mr. McGarrahan. A patent was therefore actually made out, but here again the hidden hand was felt. For some reason that the congressional inquirers could not determine it was never delivered.

Mr. McGarrahan, who was never at rest a moment in the prosecution of his claim after his failure with the Fortieth Congress, appealed to the Forty-first Congress. It was then that he learned that a patent to the land, heretofore unknown to be in existence, was on file in the General Land Office. This was undoubtedly the patent that President Lincoln had ordered given to Mr. McGarrahan, but which had been lost in the tangled mass of official red tape and filed eventually without notice. But when John A. Bingham, of the House Committee, called at the General Land Office to see the files he found that the record of the patent had been mutilated. This ended that hope. And so in each succeeding Congress Mr. McGarrahan pressed his claim assiduously, and several times bled to restore him to his property passed the house, but failed to pass the Senate. Once, indeed, a bill for his relief did get before President Harrison, and then Mr. McGarrahan thought that his ship had at last come in.

It was the Fifty-second Congress that passed the bill conferring upon him the title to the land. Both the Senate and the House concurred in it. But Mr. McGarrahan's evil genius followed him, even to the White House. There were technical errors in the bill, and for this reason the President vetoed it.

After the veto a second bill was introduced into the Senate, so amended as to meet it conform to the President's objections, and passed twice in one Congress. But the bill did not reach the House until the day of adjournment—too late for consideration, and so that hope went along with all the rest. Now that the disappointed old man is gone, his claim will doubtless be dropped and pass into history as one of the most noted cases ever before Congress.—Courier-Journal.

Dr. G. C. Osmon, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kitchin, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Anderson, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

The Northwestern lumberman presents its report of pine products in 1893 in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The grand total output in 1893 fell below the total in 1892 to the amount of 1,302,999,965 feet of lumber, and in shingles there was comparative decrease of $28,827,076. The total product last year was smaller than in any year since 1886, when it was $45,268,443 feet less than that in 1885, years of restricted production which followed the industrial and trade depression of 1883 and 1884.

At a meeting of the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas, one of the speakers said that 10 years ago 1050 to 1100 pounds was about the highest weight for a Texas steer. Eight years ago it was almost unheard of that a lot should average 1200 pounds. When he was speaking there were two car loads at market, averaging over 1500 pounds. Much of this change is due to better breeding, and some to better or more intelligent feeding.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. The Canine Enemies of the Sheep.

In the Journal of Agriculture, Mr. C. W. Waters, who is a sheep grower in Missouri where dogs abound, writes as follows of the privileges allowed to these animals of generally great value. He is a man of sound judgment and slow to express a careless opinion on an important question: But are sheep owners on equal terms with dog owners? The sheep owner is bound by law to restrain his sheep and to maintain them on his own land. Sheep have no legal right on the roadside unless the owners accompany them. No sheep owner dreams of maintaining a right to permit his sheep to wander over the fields of his neighbors and through their yards; and yet sheep do not bite nor kill other domestic animals. Dogs are privileged. Professedly owned for their master's pleasure, they are tolerated in becoming the misery and mercies of others. They hold the right of fields, yards and blocks, and by common consent privileges that are denied to man. Is this right? Shall not dog owners be compelled to keep them on their own grounds, except as they accompany them? Why shall not dog owners accept restrictions to this destructive form of property that after ages of contention sheep owners were compelled to for harmless and useful property?

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

For Congress.

We are authorized to announce Hon. Marcus C. Lisle of Clark county as a candidate for Congress, in the Tenth District, to succeed himself, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Hon. Jo M. Kendall, of Floyd county as candidate for Congress from the Tenth District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Matt C. Clay as a candidate for Constable of the Mt. Sterling Magisterial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Dr. N. F. Pierce as a candidate for Coroner of Montgomery county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The Hon. Evan E. Settle, of Owen, wants to divide time with Mr. Breckinridge at Paris, on next Monday, the 7 inst. Mr. Settle has refrained from public speaking while Mr. Breckinridge was telling to the World what a bad man he has been, but now since he has aired himself; and Miss Pollard shouts victory over his dead carcass. Settle is itching to talk. What in the world has Breckinridge got to talk about?

The Lexington Transcript threw a political bomb in its issue of last Tuesday, which has caused much comment. The Transcript is right as far as it goes. It says to the politicians that the policy of the Transcript is not to take part in Democratic fights for nominations, and sees no reason for a change now. It further impresses its readers with the idea that the kind of a man to represent the Ashland district has not yet been named. We have but one criticism to offer, and that is, if the timber being presented is not in every way free from rot, they should name the man and demand that he enter the race. The Ashland district has many good men, men of talent and unspotted character, and such a man should represent the district and clear up the cloud under which it now is.

The Louisville Times jumps on President Cleveland with both feet for appointing Hon. C. R. Brooks, late of this place, District Attorney for Oklahoma, claiming that the President should have appointed a resident of the Territory to the position. The Times is in the main correct in the position it takes—in fact the Times is so generally correct that it is seldom very unsafe to accept what it says without question or debate. In the matter before us the Times takes the position that Mr. Brooks is not a bona fide resident of Oklahoma. This is a mistake on the part of the Times. When Mr. Brooks left here he burned his ships behind him and turned his face toward with no intention of returning home in Kentucky, whether he should be appointed District Attorney or not. This he said to us before he was fortunate enough to get his appointment as Assistant District Attorney, and afterward reiterated the same in letters received from him when he had located in his new home.

There is too little difference in the time of residence of any of Oklahoma's attorneys for them to make very much to do over the matter of Mr. Brooks' good fortune. Judge Brooks will make a most efficient officer, and since he is a citizen of the Territory, his is a very wise appointment on the part of the President.

If Col. Breckinridge has any regard for the fair fame of his constituents he will sternly repress all such indecencies as the burning of Judge Bradley in effigy, and will prevent his friends getting up the "ovation" planned for him on his return home. Much as he may resent the public opinion that condemns him, it is a mistake to flout it too brazenly. The very least that can be asked of him and his partisans is to be as unobtrusive as possible.—N. Y. World.

Tenth Congressional District.

Precinct meetings—June 30.
County Conventions—July 3.
District Convention—July 10.

The State convention of the Republican State League has been officially called to meet in Frankfort May 11.

The authorities at Washington say that Coxe's army will not be allowed to invade Washington, and if it is attempted the military will be called out at once. They also say that the laws in force in the District of Columbia are adequate for every emergency and will be rigidly enforced.

The Democratic Committee of Lee county has ordered a Mass. Convention to be held June 2nd., to name the candidates for county officers, and a Mass Convention for the last Saturday in June to name a candidate for Congress in this the Tenth District.

J. H. Huber, cashier of the late People's Bank, Louisville, was killed yesterday morning by a Louisville and Nashville train at his home at Huber's station. He was walking on the track at the time, and it is thought, was not in his right mind, as he had recently been suffering from softening of the brain.

Ed D. Patton, deputy county clerk, of Bourbon county, and Democratic nominee for county clerk, which means an election by a handsome majority, is in the city on legal business. His son, Pearce, is with him. Mr. Patton was formerly connected with the Kentuckian and is just now being honored for his many worthy deeds.

Coxe's army is growing rapidly in Chicago. Saturday there were about 15,000 men under the white flag there. They have divided themselves into three "armies," having opened recruiting offices and obtained barracks. The barracks being the ice-houses of E. S. Gray, on Western avenue. General Sullivan says, "Washington will see something it hasn't since the war." It is said that on sight of Coxe's army an old colored woman, Jane Burke, of Hagerstown, Md., died instantly. This is the second death that has occurred upon sight of the army, the other being that of a populist farmer of Columbia, Ohio.

In the United States Senate Mr. Aldrich, representing the Republican side of the chamber, made a very bold bid in the way of the proposition for an immediate vote on the Tariff Bill. Senator Harris, after a consultation with his Democratic colleagues promptly "called" the Senator from Rhode Island, asking unanimous consent to proceed at once to a vote on the Finance Committee amendments, and then the final passage of the bill. Thereupon Mr. Aldrich was compelled to expose the insincerity and emptiness of the Republican "hot air" and beat a hasty and ignominious retreat. The episode, which occurred during the delivery of Senator Lindley's speech, was accompanied by an unusually interesting and lively discussion.

They have got the Rev. E. L. Southgate to making explanations in regard to a statement which it is said wounded the feelings of some of the ex-Confederate friends of Col. Breckinridge. Mr. Southgate should say Mr. Breckinridge has proven himself to be a very bad man, unworthy the confidence of all honest, pure-minded men, and ex-Confederates cannot afford to countenance him until he shows signs of repentance and proves himself worthy; and as a leader he cannot be longer tolerated, and then stick to it. If a man is in a den of vipers and makes one blow he may expect to see many forked tongues.

A correspondent of a New York Republican paper names the Republican ticket for 1896—H. & H.—Harrison and Hill. That speech of Hill's struck a popular cord with Republicans.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, April 27, 1894.

Senator Roger I. Mills, on Wednesday, ended the tariff debate in the Senate. At 1 o'clock the bill was laid before the Senate, and Senator Mills was recognized. Senator Mills often declared that Legislators often had to make an election between two parliamentary measures, neither of which meets their approval. It must necessarily be so, for no man or committee of men could frame a bill that would meet the approval of everyone. "This bill does not meet my approval," said he, "and I doubt if it meets the approval of any gentleman on this side of the chamber. But such as it will have my hearty support." It was strictly a party measure, he continued, and had been a party measure from the foundation of the Government, and from the foundation and organization of the Democratic party. The bill has been changed, so now it is thought that it will receive the vote of every Democratic Senator. The income tax will stay, but it is thought that a time will be fixed when it shall cease to be imposed. The dissatisfied Senators, Hill, Murphy, Gorman, Brice, Smith and Gibson, are willing to do this. They are opposed to the sugar duty, also. It has been arranged, however, in a way that they will give their support to the bill, and it will now be pushed to a vote as soon as possible, in order to get it out of the way of the fall campaign.

The discussion by paragraph is now on. Representative Goodnight, of Kentucky, introduced a bill creating a Department of Health, presided over by a physician serving as a member of the Cabinet with the title as Secretary of Public Health. Hon. C. R. Brooks has received his appointment as United States District Attorney for the District of Oklahoma, and was confirmed by the Senate this week. Coxe's army is beginning to create some uneasiness in the District. The White House and Treasury Department has had extra guards placed in them, also at the Capitol, in case there should be any need of them. There are several of Coxe's advance agents in the city, and Smith, the unknown, is holding open air meetings every evening and lecturing. The police and detective forces have been increased. The army is now within a few miles of Washington, and is expected here in a few days. The programme for the coming week is as follows: May 1, Coxe's army; May 2, a circus, and May 7, another circus. What a gay old time we'll have.

I feel sorry for Coxe's followers, for the fact that they have to walk and eat bacon, beans and hard tacks, while "Gen." Coxe rides a thirty thousand dollar horse and has dessert every day, and when he is in Chicago or New York, puts up at the best hotels. "What fools we mortals are."

The Senate is still delaying the confirmation of Mr. Benedict. It has been over three weeks since he was nominated. The Democrats were blowing Mr. Cleveland for his delay, and now that he has acted the Senate has taken up the march of delay.

Such delays as the Senate is in the habit of should be stopped! Sometimes think it is rightly termed a millionaire club. We need some workmen in this branch of Uncle Sam's workshop.

The sergeant at arms of the House has issued a letter stating that the law of 1856 docking members for absence from the House, without leave of absence or unless a member was sick or there was some members of his family sick, would be enforced after May 4. The letter created quite a discussion on the floor of the House yesterday as a matter of privilege, but Mr. Crisp ruled that it was not a matter of privilege but that it was a law and that the courts only had a right to place constructions on that law, and to settle matters Mr. Crains has introduced a bill deducting from the monthly salary of members for days that they are absent from the House. The bill was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary and ordered to be printed.

Blasphemers And Adulterers.

An Elder of the Christian church was heard reprimanding one of the members of his flock for taking the Blue Grass Blade, that blasphemous paper of Charley Moore. In a few moments their conversation turned on the re-election of Breckinridge to Congress. This good old Elder, this man whose head is gray with the frost of 60 winters or more; this man who has had every opportunity of knowing that adultery and a corruption of the Ballot box are two of the most prevalent and grossest forms of evil known to the world, said if he was in the Ashland district he would not only vote for Breckinridge, but spend money for him. This good old Elder voices the sentiment of thousands, perhaps, of professors of religion. Now, while we are bitterly opposed to taking the Blue Grass Blade, or any other corrupt or corrupting paper into our homes, is it any worse to take a corrupt paper, than to vote for an adulterer, than to corrupt the Ballot box? The Savior said: Take the beam out of your own eye, before you undertake to pluck the mote out of your brother's eye. This applies to this reprimanding Elder, "Consistency thou art indeed a jewel." The professors of religion ought to let C. C. Moore's paper severely alone, and an Elder, as well as other professors of religion ought to let a man severely alone who admits that he testified falsely when recommending Miss Pollard, who admits that he was guilty of illicit relations with Miss Pollard, and who has in every sense proven himself unworthy of the confidence, the appreciation and the support of the people of his district. If Mr. Breckinridge is the best that the Democratic party in the Ashland District can do, then shame on Democracy, shame on the Ashland District, Blasphemers, Adulterers and Corruptors of the Ballot Box! God will judge!

Coxe and his army have reached Washington and are camped at Brightwood Park, just outside the city. Coxe declares his men will assemble on the Capitol steps to-day at noon, and that there will be a revolution if Congress does not take immediate action. The army is 350 strong and about as miserable looking set as one would wish to see.

Seven thousand striking miners from La Salle, Spring valley and Sreator assembled Friday at Toluca, Ill., to induce the miners there to quit work. Lieut. Gov. Gill made an address to the men, asking them to return as peaceably as they came, which they did. Toluca miners have not yet determined on a course of action.

Mudge Bradley has over-ruled the motion of counsel for Representative W. C. P. Breckinridge for a new trial of the celebrated Breckinridge-Pollard breach of promise suit. Bond was fixed at $500 for the appeal which Col. Breckinridge's counsel gave and would be taken up to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

THE "SNIFFLES."

Dr. Rheins Tells How the Suffering Youngster May Be Cured.

It is obvious, in the first place, that it is of the greatest importance to use every effort to prevent taking cold. The first injunction is that wool should be worn next to the skin. This is the material which best permits the normal functions of the skin to progress. The same thickness of underwear should be used the year around, the change in protection being made in the external apparel. The head covering should be light and well ventilated, so as to allow the escape of heat. Cold baths should be given every morning in a warm room, and the skin should be rubbed until ruddy and warm. Sudden exposure to cold should be avoided, and the child should never lie in the way of a draft.

Let us now study the treatment of the disease itself. The cardinal principle is cleanliness. Keep the nasal cavities clear and do not allow the secretions to accumulate around the nostrils. The cavities should be sprayed out three or four times a day with bland antiseptic solutions. The simplest of these is one of common salt, which is only cleansing, but soothing to the mucous membrane. The best solution, however, is a combination of iodoform, borax, glycerin and water. Solutions of tannin, and plate of zinc or nitrate of silver should be reserved for the subacute affection.

The difficulty in feeding must be at once combated by spoon feeding, which must be done regularly, for it is impossible in any other way for a child at the breast to receive proper nourishment. The temperature of the room should be about 70 to 75 degrees, and fluctuations from these temperatures should be avoided. A dose of castor oil at the onset of an attack often lessens its severity and has a beneficial influence on the course of the disease, especially if there is any tendency toward constipation. For this chronic affection other more powerful means must be used, and these should be left to the skill of the physician.—Dr. John H. Wallace Rhine in Babyhood.

Had Had Enough.

Here is a story from Servia which should perhaps be taken with a grain of salt:

To a grand dinner given some years ago at Belgrade by an august personage to a number of foreigners of distinction visiting the Servian capital, several members of the skupschina, or national parliament, had been invited. One of the alien guests, a well known French financier, happened to sit next to a Servian M. P. and was considerably diverted by his quaint expostulations for dealing with certain attributes of civilization obviously unfamiliar to him. Toward the conclusion of the dinner the Frenchman selected a toothpick from a small tray lying near him and politely passed the receptacle on to his neighbor, who, however, peremptorily declined his offer, exclaiming:

"No, Gospodin. I have already eaten 10 of the things, and I want no more."

Pretty American Femininity.

The type of beauty of American women is confessedly high. The number of pretty girls one sees on Fifth avenue in an afternoon is scarcely greater than that seen in Europe in three months, and leaving out certain class of Parisiennes the New York girls are better dressed than the women of any other world's capital. But here is the peculiar thing: Abroad the women of the poorer classes rank low in beauty on an average. In this country, as compared with the so called "fortune favorites," the poorer girls are those that hold their own in point of good looks and dressing. Good food, education, general easy circumstances and the incultation of self respect have given the United States a wonderfully large percentage of charming girls and women. A trip abroad will prove the correctness of these assertions.—New York Mail and Express.

A Sioux Indian Custom.

Among the Sioux Indians a common custom exists. When one family borrows a kettle from another, it is expected when the kettle is returned a small portion of the food that has been cooked in it will be left in the bottom. Should this custom be disregarded by any one, that person would never be able to borrow again, as the owner must always know what has been cooked in her kettle. A white woman on one occasion returned a soured kettle, intending to teach a lesson in cleanliness, but her act became the cause of the camp as a fresh example of the meanness of the whites.—New York Recorder.

The Number 40 in the Bible.

The rain that produced the flood fell for 40 days and 40 nights, and after it ceased it was 40 days before Noah opened the ark. Moses was 40 days on the mountain fasting, and the spies spent 40 days investigating matters in Canaan before making their report. Elijah fasted 40 days in the wilderness, and Jonah gave the people of Nineveh 40 days in which to repent. The 40 days' fast of Jesus is known to all readers of the New Testament.—St. Louis Republic.

Not Easily Disturbed.

"Yes, most men have a mania for running to fires," said a fireman in his hour of ease. "In fact, many will even get up in the night to run with the crowd and see what is going on. But I encountered a man the other day who exhibited a most remarkable indifference to entertainment of this kind. Early in the morning we heard a woman screaming 'Fire' in residence yard that backs up against the engine house, and one of the men ran around to discover that she had made too vigorous a breakfast fire, and the kitchen roof was in flames. We all turned out in short order, and though it was a lively blaze soon had it under control. The street was full of people, of course, and all the women of the family were rushing about with great excitement."

"As the man of the house was not to be seen, we supposed he was out on one of his usual trips; but, bless you! when we were reaching up the hose, he came lumbering out of a side door. He was a large man and was evidently just out of bed, as he was buttoning his clothes on the way. 'Well,' said one of the men, 'have you just found out your house was afire?'"

No," replied Mr. Portly, with a yawn. "I heard the women screaming, but I knew you boys were handy and would look after matters. If it hadn't been for the looks of the thing, I wouldn't have got up at all."—Indianapolis Journal.

Early Mention of Sugar.

The Rolls contain no information, so far as I have searched them, concerning the source of sugar; but Frobisher, in his "Encyclopedia of Antiquities," refers to Joiville's "Vie de St. Louis" as his authority for saying that the sugar cane was grown at Acre and states that Barbary was the chief place whence it was obtained before its cultivation in the West Indies. "Townsend's Manual of Dates" gives India and Arabia as the home of sugar in A. D. 54. Cyren 1148-1429, Madeira 1420-1506 and Spain before the Moorish invasion of 711. Beet root was not used before 1747.

The earliest mention I have found of sugar is "200 pounds of sucre de Roche" in 1285 (Close Roll 28 Henry III). Then come "two and one half pounds zucar rosar," 1253 (Wardrobe Account, 1 22 Q. R.); "Zucar Alex" five pounds at tenpence per pound, 1264 (Ibid. 1 29); four and one fourth pounds "zucar" at two shillings (Ibid.); 6238 pounds "zucar" and 1226 pounds "zucar ros" at sixpence (Ibid. 4 14); sugar from Superlene (Ibid. 28 18), etc. The item is not of uncommon occurrence in the Wardrobe Rolls.—Notes and Queries.

Is Ice Cream Milk?

The question, "Is ice cream to be considered as milk?" came up in Glasgow case of some importance from a sanitary point of view, which was settled in the British high court by a judgment of Lord Macmillan. The facts were these: During one summer and autumn some cases of fever were found to have been caused by the use of ice cream, and at the same time some unsavory revelations were made as to the manner in which the manufacture and storage of ice cream are carried on in English cities, particularly in the overcrowded and dirty dwellings of foreigners, into whose hands the trade has largely fallen.

In order to bring these dealers under the sanitary regulations applicable to purveyors of milk, the Glasgow local authority brought a test case before the sheriff's court and won it. The sheriff's decision was reversed on appeal by the higher court. A man who sells ice cream, therefore, which consists almost entirely of milk, with a little flour and coloring, is not a purveyor of milk in the sense which the English statute requires and is consequently not amenable to the law.—Scotsman.

Bismarck as a Romp.

Prince Bismarck is usually depicted as a very stern and serious man, though once he showed himself in a different light. There was a children's party at the palace, and the crown prince was anxious that the ex-chancellor should take a partner and join in one of the dances. "No, I'm too old to dance," said Bismarck, "but I'll tell you what I'll do—I don't mind playing the organ," and a few minutes later the emperor entered the room to find a crowd of little folks busily engaged in dancing, while Bismarck was vigorously turning the handle of a barrel organ that had been provided for their amusement.—Berlin Letter.

Lengthening Life.

The difference between rising every morning at 6 and at 9 in the course of 40 years amounts to 29,200 hours, or three years, 121 days and 18 hours, which are equal to eight hours a day for exactly 10 years. So that rising at 6 will be the same as if 10 years of life (a weighty consideration) were added, wherein we may command eight hours every day i. e. the cultivation of our minds and the dispatch of business.—New York Ledger.

One "Woman in a Thousand."

"And your wife aimed at and struck your head with the cup?"

"Well, then, all I have to say is that you would be very proud of her."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Hints to Housekeepers.

Eat jelly or any other layer cake with the fork.

In calling on two persons in one house leave two cards.

In making sweetmeats none but a silver spoon should be used.

Nothing like glycerine two-thirds, rose water one-third, for the hands.

The best complexion rouge is to live regularly, eat regularly, sleep regularly.

A mixture of quinine and whiskey not only is a good hair tonic but will beautifully tone some objectionable shades.

If a little cornstarch is put into the salt for the table it will keep it from lumping, and the prettier little shakers will not have so hard scolding in damp weather.

Grass may be taken out of carpets by covering the spot with powdered French chalk, laying a soft brown paper over the chalk and covering with a warm iron.

If one wishes to cool a hot dish in a hurry it will be found that if the dish be placed in a vessel full of cold, salty water it will cool more rapidly than if it stood in water free from salt.

Let your handbag contain a bottle of Florida water, bay rum or cologne. Nothing is more refreshing when traveling. Let there be, also, sewing and writing implements, soap—never under any circumstances use the soap supplied by the railroads—wash cloth, smelling salts, lead hair crimper, manure set, shoe horn and boot (if you will wear buttoned boots) a bottle of litorine for mouth wash, extra handkerchiefs, pins and hairpins.

To clean black lace wash it with skimmed milk, do not rub, but constantly squeeze it softly. When it seems clean take it out, and put in into a little clean milk, also skimmed; give it another squeeze, and lay it out directly on sheets of stout paper; touch every here and there with the fingers to draw out the scallops and edges; lay the sheets of paper over the lace, and a heavy weight over all till dry. If laid on anything soft the moisture is absorbed, and the lace will not be so new looking.

For whitening scorched linen it is often sufficient to wet it with soap and lay it in the hot sun. Another method is, where milk is plentiful, to put one pound of white soap into a gallon of milk, and boil the scorched article in it. Another plan is to squeeze out the juice of two middle-sized onions which is boiled in a pint of vinegar, with one ounce of white soap and two ounces of fuller's earth; the mixture is applied coat to the scorched part, and when dry washed off with clean water.

One of the fads indulged by women on all occasions is powdering the nose. Too much pastry, butter and greasy food has a strange propensity to come out on the end of the most perfect nose, thus imposing a well fed woman the necessity of "making up" that delicate feature. Here is a rule that surpasses all, says Camille d'Arville, the pretty "Robin Hood" singer. It can be tried by any woman possessing the faintest bit of color in her cheeks. First apply a little cold cream or oily substance, which should be rubbed in well to serve for a foundation. The next innocent of preparations, rice powder or starch, should then be puffed gently all over the face, brow, neck and all. Then dampen a soft sponge or handkerchief and rub off the cheeks and under the eyes until the dainty pink color appears. Rub a little round spot off the chin to give it a soft shade and the shadow of a dimple effect. Bring out the eyebrows and lashes with a soft brush and just enough oil to give them lustre. The effect is so fresh and beautiful that a woman feels well repaid for her half hour spent in this simple make up before going out. Besides, the powder is a protection against dirt in the streets and the dreaded freckling caused by the sun at this season of the year.

The production of oranges in Florida this year is estimated at 4,500,000 boxes, and as the Florida fruit is fast displacing the Sicilian it is predicted that in a few years 10,000,000 boxes will represent an average crop of the Southern State.

Advantages of Farm Life.

Does the money invested in agriculture yield as large per cent. as that invested in mercantile or other interests?

In deciding upon an occupation the young man is, very naturally, anxious to ascertain not only for what he is best fitted and to what his tastes lead, but also has an eye to the return his labor and capital will yield.

In the distribution of talents God has bestowed on us adaptation, which seems to occupy an important place, and he who disregards this quality finds he has failed to secure an element necessary to success.

Comparatively few young men begin life with the means of support independent of labor. His capital, then, must consist of good health, ability and willingness to work, and last, but by no means least, brains.

For what am I best qualified, and what is most congenial to my taste, is the question? Suppose he decides to invest in land, considering the advantages it has over other property. He knows that the culture of the ground is God appointed, and also that it is the only lawful business which he has enjoined upon man.

The support of life is food and raiment. These are produced by agriculture and by no other means, and the man who faithfully tills the soil helps to feed and clothe the world.

Then, too, his subsistence for himself and his family is insured, and only in very rare cases do we know of a farmer arranging a compromise with his creditors for 25 per cent.

The farmer is sure of constant employment, which is not a small advantage to a young man. He never has a "shutdown" or a "lockout," but has full hours work every month in the year.

Farming is also an independent business. The merchant invests his money in dry goods, as they are termed. But he is entirely dependent on his customers for support. The mechanic is robbed of his employment by the deadlock of business, and often in large manufacturing great numbers depend on a small individual, knowing nothing of a distinct business. They are acquainted with but a single part of the work, as, for example, when they have a place in a team, as it is called.

Agriculture is, or should be, a learned profession. One of the most literary productions of the world is a work on farming. It was written in the first century, by Virgil, and was the product of seven years labor. Just in proportion to the amount of brains employed in the management of our farms will be the remunerative gain derived. Formerly in the corn lands of the West the soil was considered too rich to be mixed with brains. Corn would grow with little labor and less thought. That lack of thought has brought leanness upon the broad lands of the West, and they now call upon the robbers of redress.

In view of the subject, I need not specify the per cent. of grain, but to this honorable, intelligent company of practical farmers I again propose the question for discussion. Does the money invested in agriculture yield as large per cent. as that invested in mercantile or other interests?—The American Cultivator.
